

IS THERE LIFE IN OUTER SPACE? YOU BETCHA!

JULY 1989/$2.95

LIFE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY
JACKIE
HER 60 YEARS
IN PHOTOGRAPHS

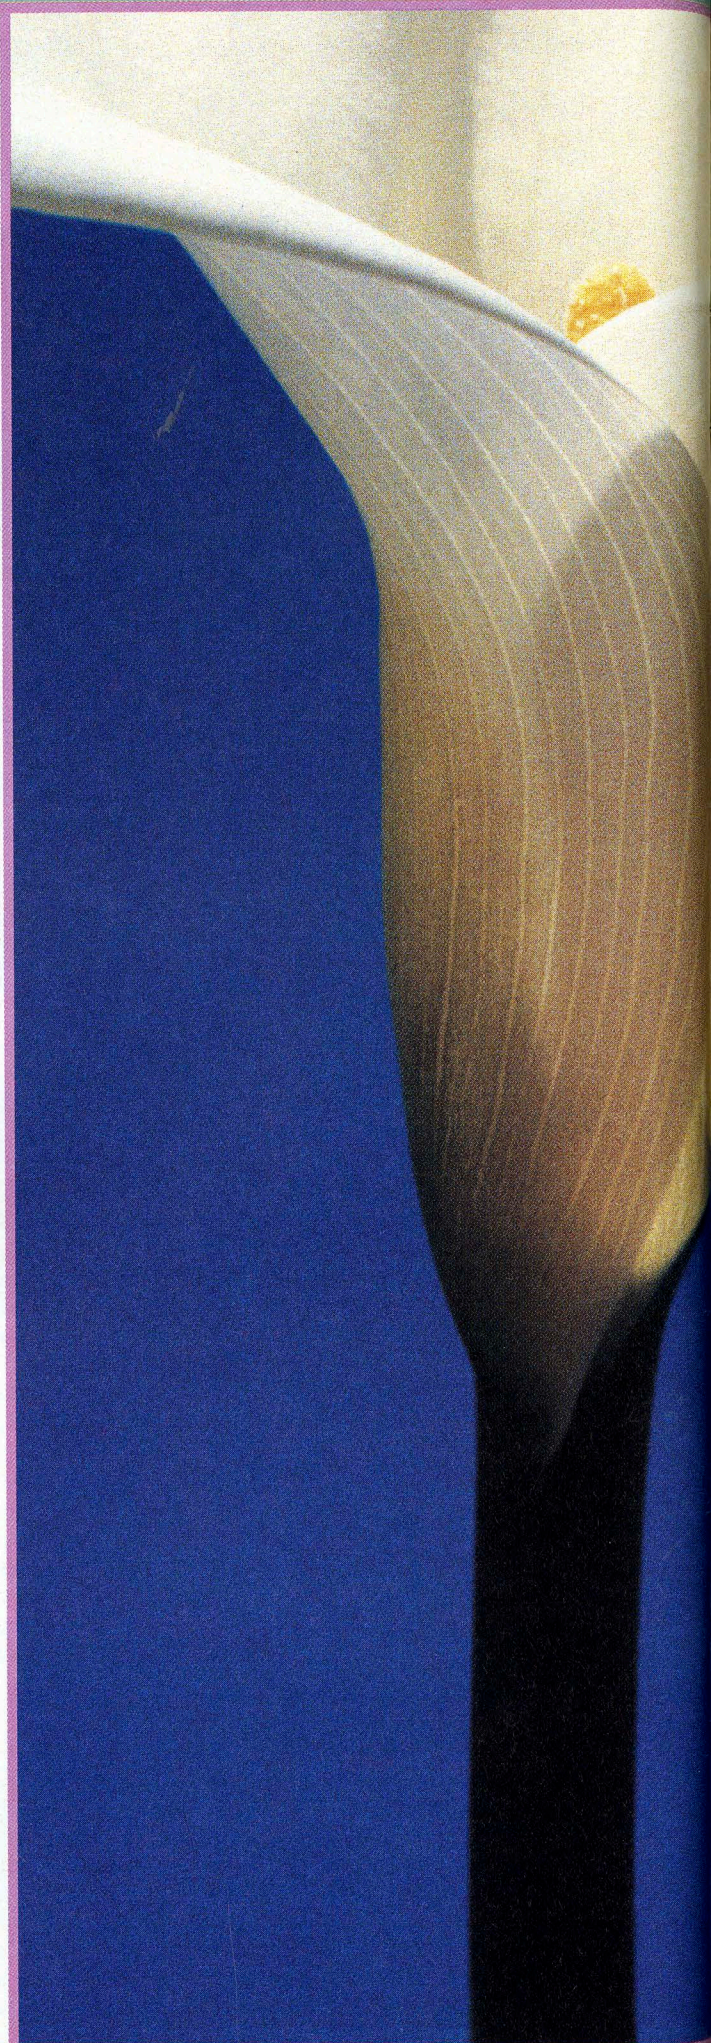

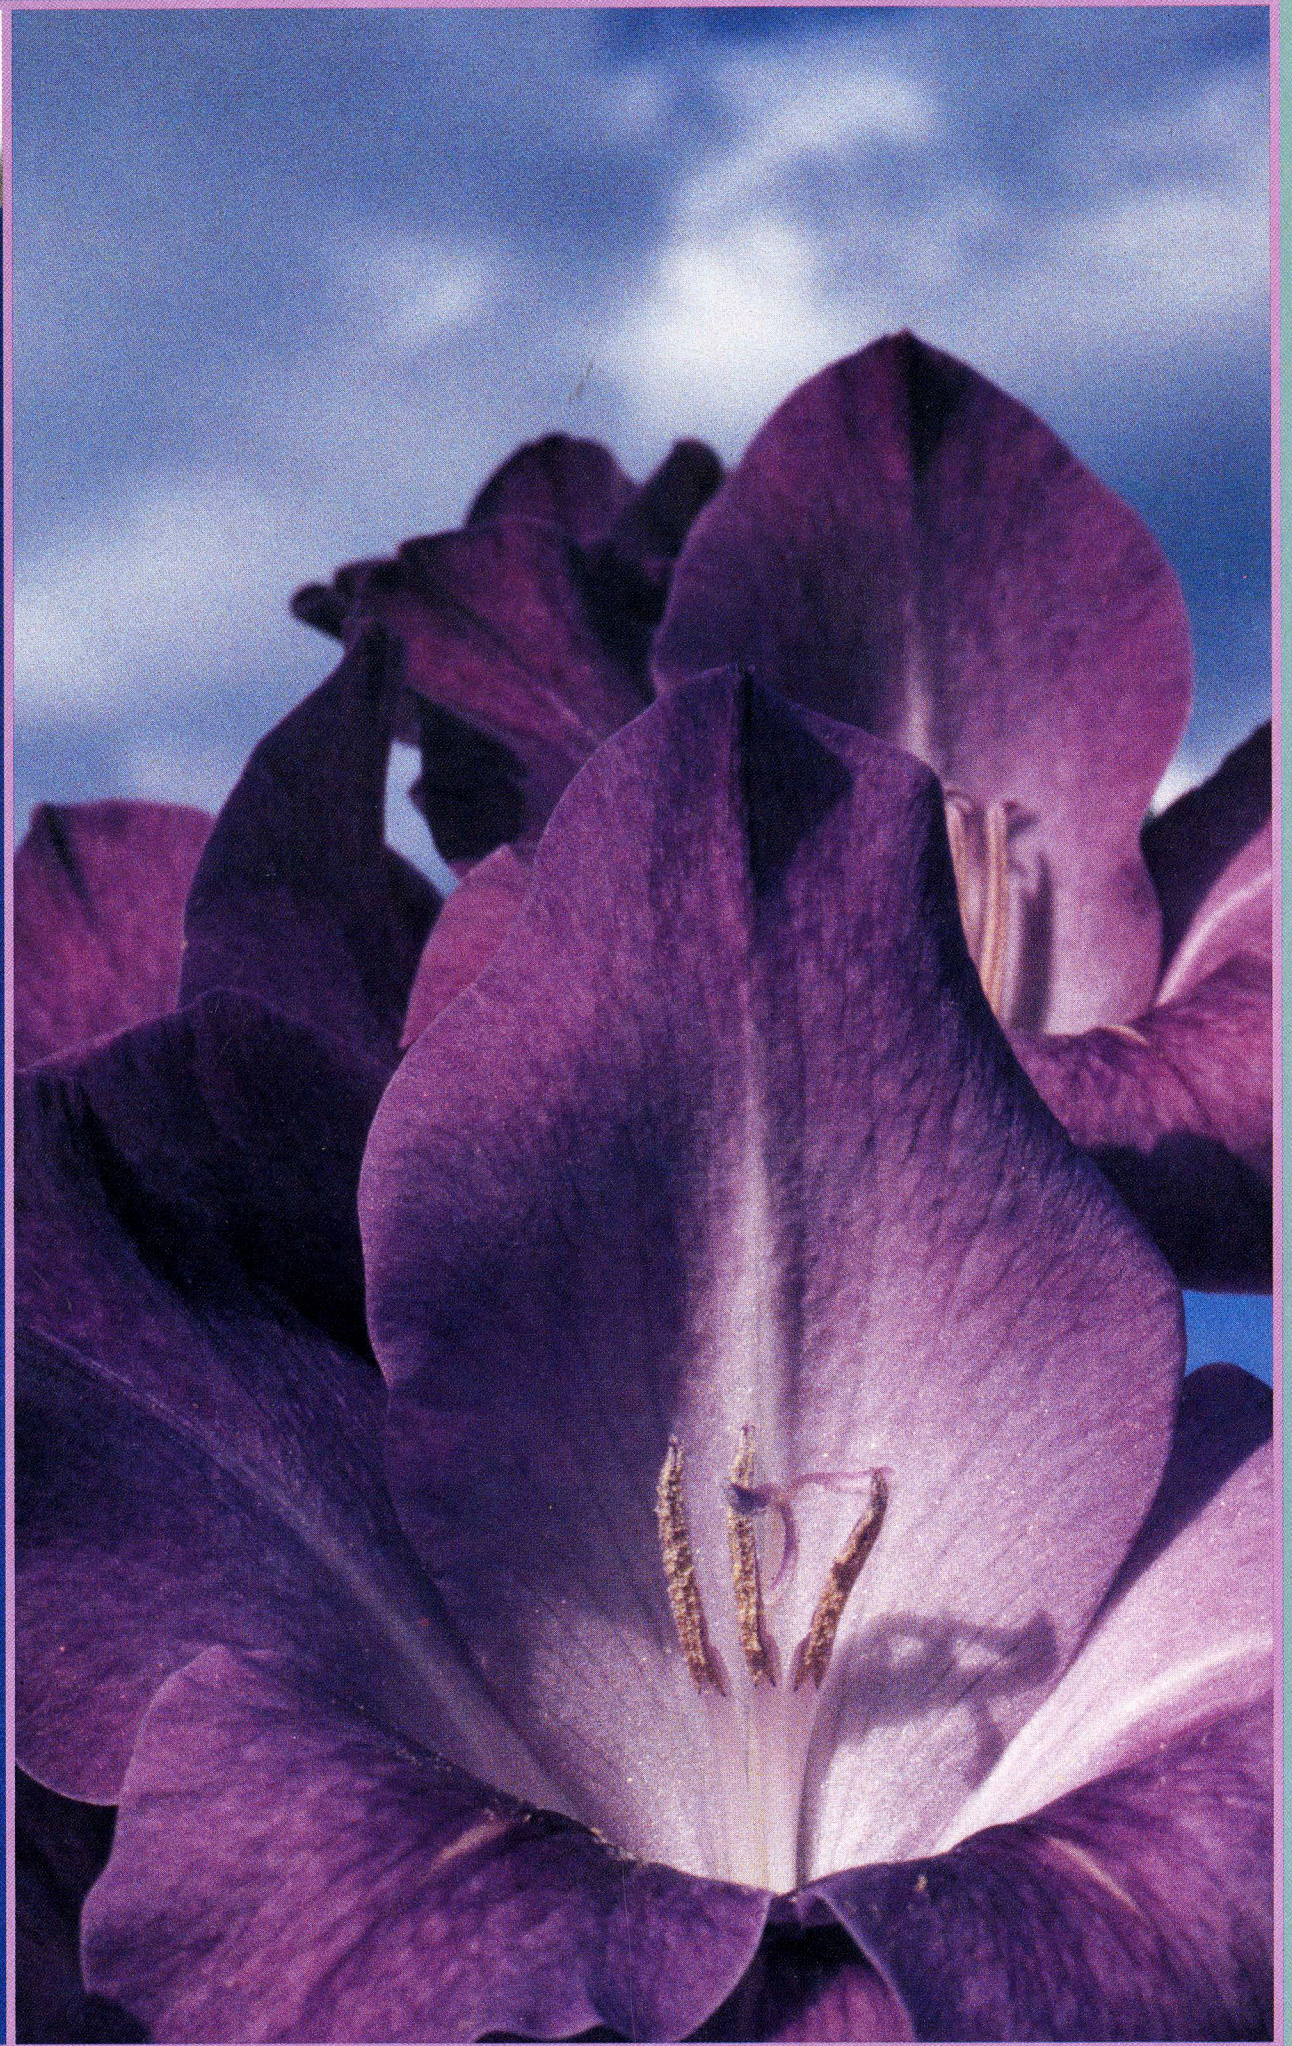

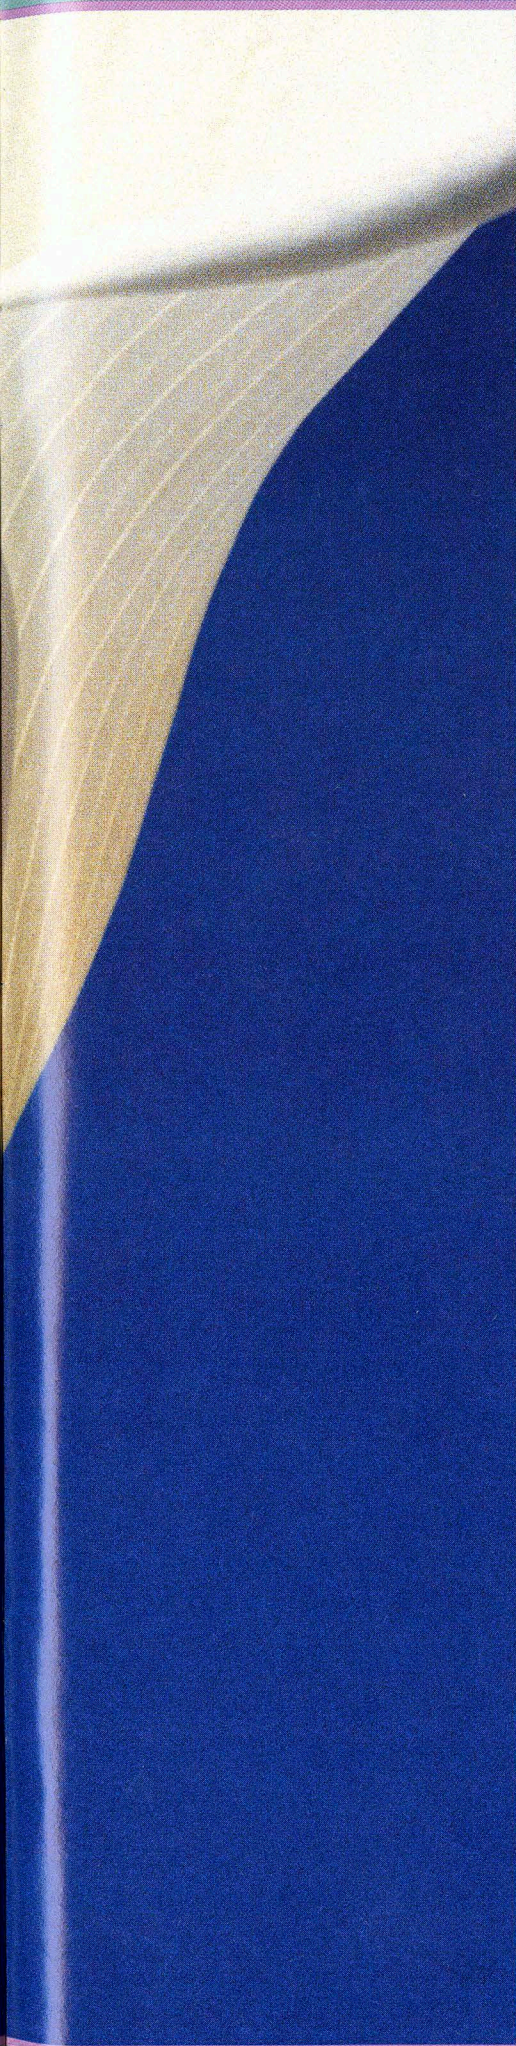

Proud, Proud BEAUTIES

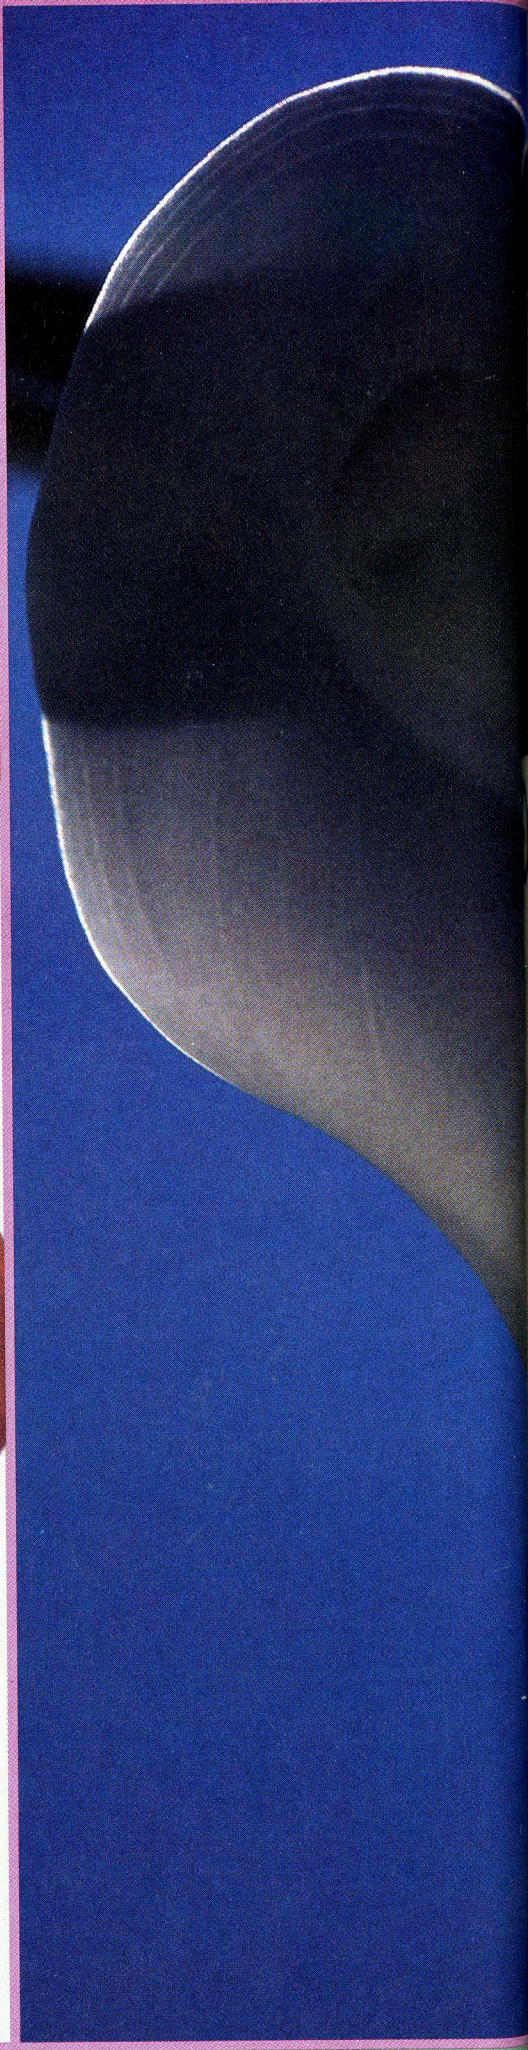

Photographer Harold Feinstein takes bee's-eye views of botanical blooms all over the world, from his rooftop garden in New York's Greenwich Village to the African savanna. Also an astrologist and occasional poet, Feinstein, 58, waxes positively florid on his favorite subject: "Flowers are spiritual and sensual. Their forms, colors and scents are messages from God."

*To Feinstein, petals are "pieces of stained glass."
Top, a Florida
succulent; above, Canary Island
hibiscus; right, California calla
lily; far right, gladiolus in Spain.*

Feinstein holds a bloom against the sky: a Greek Christmas cactus (far left); in Manhattan he shot a midnight jewel (left), a snowflake dianthus (top left) and an anthurium; a morning glory on Martha's Vineyard (above). □